The Word of God to Victor Stănculescu (Excerpt)

Stay always on My strong rock and you will be afraid of nothing and of no one. Do not be afraid, you that are in command of the Romanian army; do not be afraid; not even then when you will see your steps threatened by those who want to lose you, for they will not succeed. You will see and rejoice, but be with Me all the time. Put Me before everything that his hard, before every step of yours, for I am victorious with you. I remind you of the holy Stephen, who ruled over this people, for he was going with Me and was overcoming the assailant mobs, which were coming to enslave the blessed people, for the holy Stephen first was going to receive My blessing, and only after that he went to wage war. He went to Daniel, the hermit, and while he was praying, Stephen waited before the door of this hermitage and did not leave for the army until he received My blessing from the hand of My servant, which lived and dwelt in holiness. And when the lord of the country came back from the army victoriously, he brought his thankfulness to God, raising altars of worship and glory to God, as the rulers of this people used to have great faith.
