

The Word of God at the feast of the holy apostles, Peter and Paul
(Excerpt)

I am the image of God's being, and this is the image that I want to set in you and to bring you before the human kind for My glory over the earth. The Father is giving you power, and from near you I am the image of My Father's being, the mystery of God's being. This is the mystery that is embracing you, and within it I am covering and revealing you for the work of the man's creation, and then again, I am covering and uncovering you, for the Father is giving you power, because He glorifies Himself in the little ones with His glory and the glory of His Son. Amen.

The mystery of the kingdom of heavens keeps you within it to show you from it at the right time, to the shame of the many from those who have wanted to love God by their own will and for their comfort. Oh, the glory of the heavenly things is another, and another is the glory of the earthly things. Soon, soon, I am going to bring into view, face to face, these two works, so that My work and the man's work may be seen clearly. And I am with My glory in which I comprise and cover you, for My mystery with you is My comfort, and I will comfort many with it, and these will see then the mystery of God's being, the Father's mystery, which is in Me, and My mystery, that is in you, My mystery with you. Amen, amen, amen.
